This is a picture of a Herald carrier, of Cliffon, Ariz. He is owned by L. R. Broyles, teamster for the Shannon Copper company, who lives one mile and a half from the postoffice. Each day, when the train arrives, Mr. Broyles sends the dog to the post-office and he comes back with his copy of The Herald which he receives each day. On one occasion The Herald was sent out without any red ald was sent out without any red headlines and the dog refused to have it. Another time an attempt was made to fool him by giving him another paper but even the dog knew that it was not the real live newspaper of the southwest and refused to carry it to his owner.

Mr. Broyles says that several years ago, while he was carrying express matter from the office of the express company to the Shannon Copper company a package fell off the wagon. He did not notice that it was gone but the dog jumped on the seat and hept tugging at his coat sleeve until he got down. The dog then led him back to the place where the package, containing several hundred dollars, lay in the road. The dog received an extra large dinner of chicken bones for his reward.

BUYING POWER IS

Better Buying Features Wheat; Markets in Northwest Steadier.

By John F. Pritchard.

Chicago, Il., Sept. 27.—It was said on the board of trade today that the lack of buying power on the September corn futures for the past few days was a reflection of the fact that good sized private settlements have been made between the longs and shorts in the September futures.

The closing up of the gap in the September futures and the fact that there is a naticeable falling off in the domand for that month, was believed in corn circles to have been at least a partial result of the heavy liquidation of the entire list.

Corn showed further losses of 146% cents today, but there were goodly reactions and advances from the bottom prices reached.

Higher temperatures are expected by the weather bureau, and in case the sunshing continues, the movement of corn will begin on a large scale.

There was better buying in wheat today, the undertone was stronger and final prices of the day were in fixed to the control of the control bushels.

There was lack of trade in provisions, including not only the futures but the cash article as well.
